Project Description

The Bureau of Population, Refugees, and Migration (PRM) has funded a number of non-governmental organization (NGO) partners for multiple years of follow-on projects in a variety of refugee contexts. The Office of Refugee Assistance for Africa (PRM/AFR) would like to work with an intern to conduct a review of such NGO projects, to assess the effectiveness of the long-term programming. The intern will analyze data provided by NGO partners from quarterly reports to assess whether the targets established prior to the initiation of the project were met by the conclusion of the project, and analyze the impact of projects funded for only one year at a time that received consecutive years of funding to achieve common objectives. The focus will be on NGO partners that received multiple years of funding for refugee assistance activities for the same sector in one specific location. Additionally, the internship will include other tasks related to tracking refugee populations in Africa.
